
Thanks to business aviation, we're bringing cancer patients closer to their cure.

“After her cancer treatment, she could not fly commercially. What a relief she could fly with Corporate Angel Network.”

Through the generosity of corporations flying business aircraft, Corporate Angel Network arranges free travel for cancer patients using the empty seats on corporate jets.

This service is vitally important to cancer patients. Some simply can't afford the cost to fly commercially. Others can't handle the stress of navigating airports. Still others can't risk the exposure of crowded airports because of immune system deficiencies.

Since 1981, Corporate Angel Network, a not-for-profit organization, has worked with U.S. corporations to schedule more than 31,000 cancer-patient flights and currently transports nearly 250 patients a month to and from treatment. The process is simple. Corporate Angel Network's staff does all the work. After all, patients and their families have enough to worry about.
